Current times and challenges call for a skill set and tools to lead health care teams on the frontline of COVID care. Creative Health Care Management has developed a program to educate and support executives and managers through this crisis by deepening their capacity to understand the impact on their own personal and professional lives. This experiential learning provides relationship-based and trauma-informed interactions and communication strategies to help you support your teams. You will learn trauma related concepts and intervention techniques to enhance your own and your teams' wellbeing, building a foundation for resiliency and the potential for post traumatic growth.

Modalities

This virtual program will include didactics, skill-building and practice, group processing and 1:1 coaching to support self-care for health care executives, managers and their teams. Program includes one additional hour of consulting time.
